

SATB

3'15"

Loretta K. Notareschi

So Live!

For SATB Chorus

DMC-18

So Live! is a tribute to our loved ones who have died, and a reminder to the living that we may find joy in the midst of grief. It was written for the women's choir Safonia in memory of Emily Manion Roebken (1985-2017), the first music performance major at Regis University, where Notareschi is an associate professor of music. Sadly, Roebken died by suicide following a struggle with maternal mental illness.

Suicide is the second leading cause of death for women following childbirth in the United States. Help is available.

National Suicide Prevention Lifeline: 1-800-273-8255
www.suicidepreventionlifeline.org

Postpartum Support International Warmline: 1-800-944-4773
www.postpartum.net

Fear not the world's sorrow.
Sadness colors every life. And every life knows joy.
Not unending, as we wish, but in measure.
So live! Let your joy shine from you.
The world waits in darkness for your light.

Fear not the world's grief.
Every living being dies. And all the dead live on.
Not in heaven, as they say, but in us.
So live! Let their memory shine from you.
The world waits in darkness for your light.

-Loretta K. Notareschi

In memory of Emily Manion Roebken (1985-2017)

So Live!

Loretta K. Notareschi

♩ = ca. 72
Lento
p

Soprano
 Alto

Fear not the world's sor - row. Sad - ness col - ors ev - ry

Tenor
 Bass

4

life. And ev - 'ry life knows joy, joy, joy. Not un -

And ev - 'ry life knows joy, joy, joy. Not un -

A 9

end - ing, as we wish, but in meas - ure. So

end - ing, as we wish, but in meas - ure. So optional for one or two Sop.

15

live! Let your joy shine from you._____

live! Let your joy shine from you._____ The 19

dark-ness for your light._____

world waits in dark-ness, light._____ Fear not the world's_ grief. Ev - 'ry liv - ing be - ing dies. And all the dead live on, on, on. Not in heav - en, as they all the dead live on, on, on. Not in heav - en, as they

24 B

28 C